Mortgage Technology Honors DocuTech as Top Service Provider for Innovations in Document Compliance

IDAHO FALLS, IDAHO, Aug. 3, 2011 – DocuTech Corp. (DocuTech), a leader in compliance services for mortgage documents, has once again been recognized by Mortgage Technology magazine as one of the year’s Top Service Providers.

DocuTech met the four major criteria set by Mortgage Technology for inclusion in the listing: continued service and technology advances, viable revenue model and value proposition to customers, exceptional customer service and a unique impact on the mortgage industry. The editors specifically cited DocuTech’s work to expand paperless documentation offerings through key integrations and the company’s new data center in Denver as keys to this year’s recognition.

“It is no longer beneficial for lenders to sort through large document libraries,” said Scott K. Stucky, COO of DocuTech. “DocuTech provides lenders precisely the documents they need, guaranteed compliant every time. Being recognized by Mortgage Technology as a top service provider demonstrates that not only do we provide innovative products, but that we back those services with outstanding service and value.”

DocuTech’s flagship product, ConformX™, enables lenders to customize documents to generate fully compliant documents and disclosures, reduce operational costs and improve productivity with ease. The software automatically produces compliant mortgage documents and delivers e-mail, printed-paper, and Web posting options from any Internet connection. ConformX integrates with all of the top loan origination software platforms.

DocuTech’s fulfillment center generates, prints and mails state, federal and investor compliant initial disclosures to potential borrowers within government-mandated timelines. High Cost loan (HCL) and Predatory Lending Checks (PLC) were created specifically for lenders. HCL and PLC serve as an advocate to lenders by comparing loan-level data to applicable laws, regulations and investor requirements in real-time.
